

I will keep this short as i've just got back from the airfield and about to head off to Mid Wales for my UK Mountain first Aid Course.

Well what a week I have never known so many flyable days, seven in total. We have been training all week with the winch at South Cerney. We would have been unable to train on the hill due to the winds being east all week, but we managed to train three students to EP, complete four taster days and managed 146 flights in total. I don't know about you Chris but I'm completely exhausted and looking forward to a weekend off. Did I say off I of course ment hard at work doing CPR stuff.

Let hope the weather continues for the weekend for those who are qualified.

Let it all start again on Monday!!!!
